To Whom It May Concern,

From an early age, I was deeply involved with technology. My father helped me build my first circuit, an FM transmitter, that eventually became an amateur radio station. I think that lit a spark inside me that kindled into a flame.

That flame fed my love for electronics, sciences and technology and helped me develop an interest in graphics, programming, computing and digital creativity.

After completing my studies as a Multimedia Applications Specialist I started my career as a web designer and eventually evolved into a web developer. I worked in some of the most prestigious web development companies in Greece included the one that made the official website of Athens 2004 Olympic Games.

My knowledge is of a wide range. From photo and video editing, to 3D and UX/UI design and from programming, to mobile applications development. Lately though I discovered a new passion, Virtual and Augmented Reality! My focus now is on AR/VR and immersive computing. My tools among others are Unity, C#, Maya, Blender, Photoshop, Visual Studio, and After Effects. I am mainly a generalist but I can be flexible when it's needed. I am also up to date with Agile methodologies like Scrum, Lean Software Development and Kanban.

Currently I am studying Virtual Reality Development at Nackademin. I enjoy learning, exploring and experimenting with new ideas, always curious to find what the future holds. I like to combine my areas of knowledge in order to utilize my ideas. My background in IT and my huge interest in sciences gives me a keen eye for the possibilities lying ahead. The way VR and AR are integrated into everyday experiences is innovative and exciting. Immersive technologies are the future and I am here to help build it!

I believe that through a leading company like Nordic Entertainment Group I can evolve both as a professional and as a person. Working in a such prestigious company will be a challenge but I am always aiming high. I know that the collaboration with passionate and creative people of this level will be priceless and will boost my talents. I always see my colleagues as my mentors and a new job as an opportunity to boost my skills on a whole new level.

As a person, I consider myself an ambitious individual who enjoys setting high goals. I am persistent and I like to achieve my goals and to fulfill my promises. Challenges don't scare me, and I am constantly investigating new areas in order to get new knowledge and be up to date with the latest technological innovations.

People would describe me as responsible, well structured, detail-oriented, knowledgeable, open and easy to communicate with.

Thank you for your consideration, I look forward to meet you.

Sincerely,

Vasilis Zotikas
